A Letter from the Chair

PORTS '22 is the sixteenth in what continues to be the premier port engineering conference series in North America. The focus on port and waterfront planning, engineering, construction, operations, and maintenance provides exhibitors opportunities to meet directly with port and agency professionals, practicing engineers, environmental specialists, and leading researchers in the ports and harbors industries.

The Conference schedule is tailored to allow ample opportunities for participants to view the exhibits and become more aware of the breadth of services and goods available to port practitioners.

Exhibitors will interact with both new and longtime industry contacts and clients in the Exhibit Hall at informal social events, at the Gala, and during the technical tours. The expanded program for students and younger professionals also provides opportunities for recruiting the next generation of talented and energetic specialists in the field.

At PORTS '22, Exhibitors in addition to their traditional booths, will have the opportunity to reserve presentation times within the main Exhibit Hall to present their products and services to casual attendees during refreshment and lunch breaks. These open presentations will allow for greater access to your message. In addition, Exhibitors are invited to make focused, technical presentations as part of the PORTS 101 educational series in the areas of their expertise to better educate our ports and harbors communities.

Organizations that provide services or goods to the ports and harbors industry are cordially invited to join us at PORTS '22. This Conference provides an excellent opportunity to maintain industry contacts, cultivate new customers, and increase recruiting potential. Through Conference participation, exhibitors will be exposed to the latest developments in the port industry and benefit from direct interaction with professionals representing the broad range of specialties serving the port industry. The professional interaction, exchange of ideas, and cultivation of new professional contacts and opportunities remains a hallmark of the PORTS '22 Conference series. Don't miss this opportunity to see and be seen.
